Homecoming '92

by Lisa Phillips

The 1992 Homecoming was held on Friday, January 31. The crowd was the largest it had been all season.

The night started with the Jr. Varsity Cardinals playing the Dora Falcons. At the half of the game the Jr. Varsity and Varsity basketball players presented Tina Beshirs six red roses to show their appreciation for her school spirit. Following that the Cardinal Express group did their dance routine to the song "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun." The final score of the game was 42-27.

The crowning for Homecoming took place between the Jr. Varsity and the Varsity game. The candidates and their escorts were freshman Lisa Herd escorted by junior, Jason Gilbert; sophomore Tamara Thurman escorted by junior, Marvin Kinyon; junior Laura Nelson escorted by sophomore, Terry Mitchell; and senior Amy Whitley escorted by senior, Bradley Walker. The 1991 Homecoming Queen, Tonya Smith crowned Amy Whitley as 1992 Homecoming Queen.

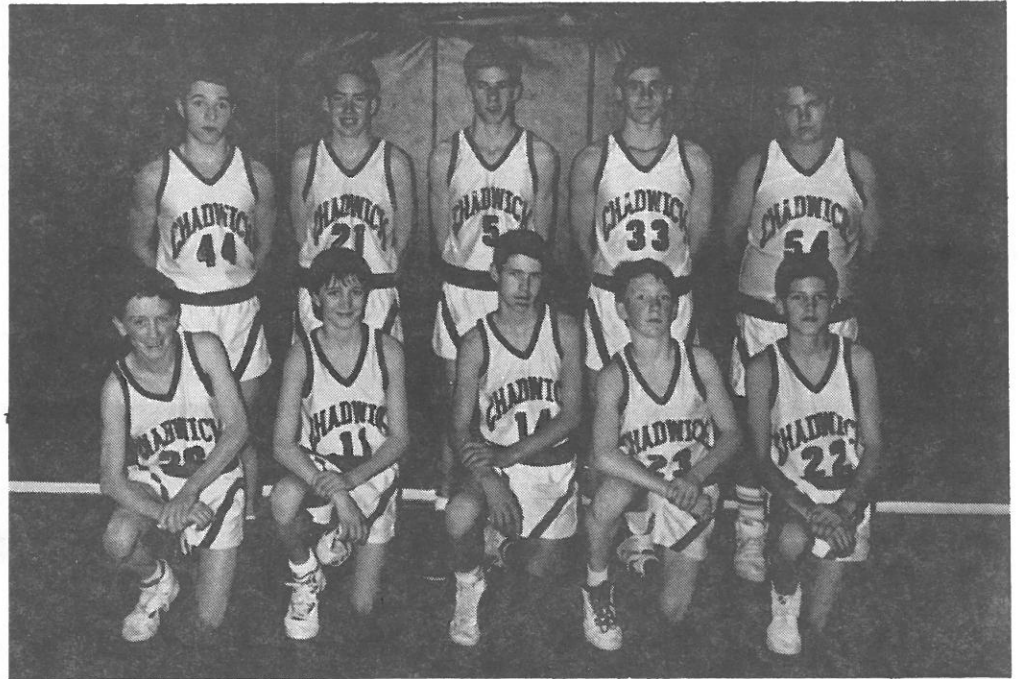

Following the Homecoming ceremony excitement the varsity boys were cheered on by the crowd as they came out of the locker room and warmed up to the song "Bad to the Bone." Not surprisingly the Varsity had yet another great victory defeating the Dora Falcons with a score of 63-48.

CHS Ends With Successful Season

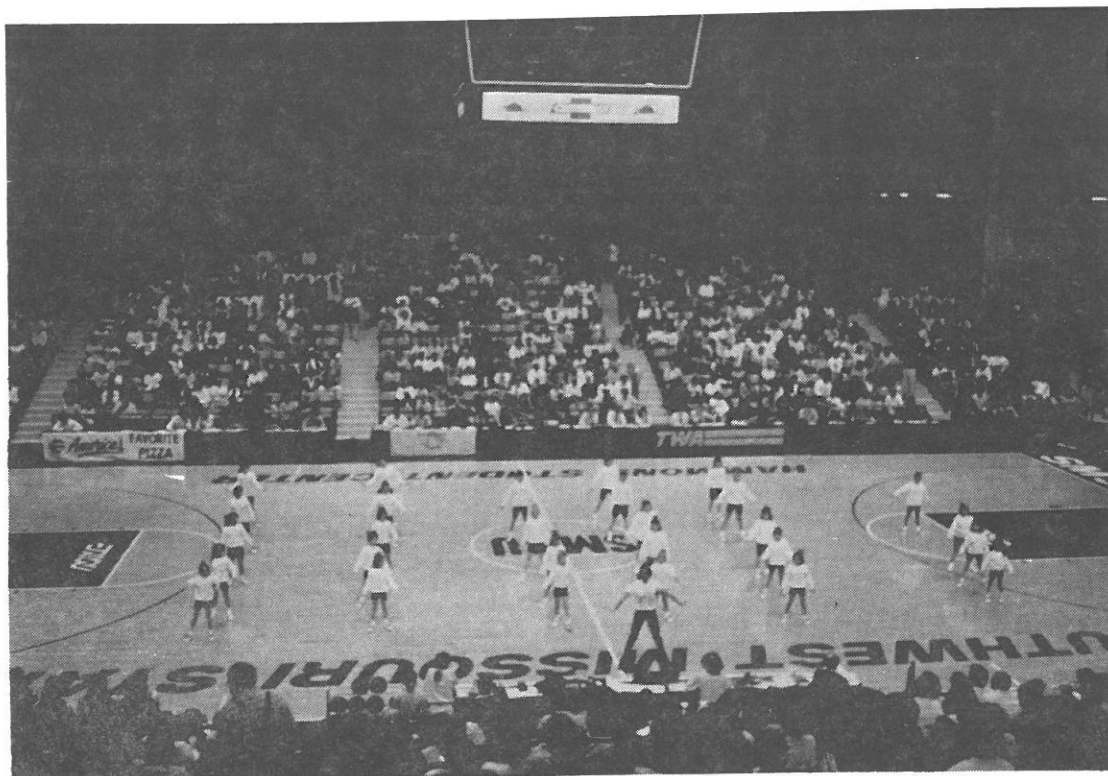

by Terry Jester

We had a good year, our varsity finished with an 18-7 record. We won two tournaments (Spokane and MTC) and finished the year ranked #1 in defense in Southwest Missouri area schools. Randy Dollarhide was voted the most valuable player in our conference, Marvin Kinyon made 2nd team, and Jason Gilbert received honorable mention. The team proved again they are one of the better 1A teams in the area.

The junior varsity also had a very good year. They finished with a 10-4 record, and would have also won the conference if not for injuries. This is the best record for the junior varsity since I have been at Chadwick.

Chadwick Varsity Team members lift Randy Dollarhide to cut the net for the the second time this season at the Bradleyville Tournament.

Think Green!

by Misty Fintel

March 17 is a day I have marked on my calendar very clearly, simply because it's the day people wear green. But why do people wear green on St. Patrick's Day? St. Patrick's Day is a day celebrated in Ireland in honor of St. Patrick himself, who was a patron saint of Ireland nearly 1500 years ago, and since Ireland is almost all green, the Irish naturally associated green with celebrating St. Patrick's Day.

In honor of St. Patrick's Day Chadwick students were asked what their favorite thing is that's green. Greg Stevens said he loved his green fishing pole. Eric Wilson said hay was his favorite thing because hay means money. Melissa Loomis said she thought green pickles were pretty and they didn't taste bad either. Laura Nelson thinks those green Berettas are pretty. Mrs. Horton said she loved her green kids on a long car ride because they get car sick. Raymond Stevens admitted that his favorite thing that is green is Misty, she's mostly green. Marvin Kinyon said he thought green was an ugly color. I personally love anything that's green, especially my green prom dress.

by Misty Fintel

Students K-6 participated in Computers for Education. Each student had to get six names of people that might order magazines. For each student that listed six names the school received $6.50 to go toward computers. Thirteen students won T-shirts for selling magazines to two or more of the people on their lists. Mrs. Russell would like to thank all of the students for their participation in the program.

Third & Fourth Grade See "Peter and the Wolf"

by Vanessa Bostic

On February 27, 1992 the third and fourth grades went to see Peter and the Wolf at Drury College. The play explained about the different instruments in the orchestra. After the play, we went to McDonalds for lunch. We returned to school at 1:30. We enjoyed the trip.

Hair Horror!

by Stefanie Weter

Men and women are now more concerned than ever about their hair. Whether its slicked back, fluffed up, straight and long, or short and curly, they are becoming incredibly vain about what's on top of their heads.

However, as we all know, things don't always go as planned. At one time or another everyone has a bad hair experience.

Below are just a few of the hair horrors experienced by students and faculty at CHS.

Misty Fintels' worst experience was cutting her own bangs. "My hair was wet, and I pulled my bangs down on my forehead which made them seem longer than they were. When it dried, it was very short and crooked."

Andrea Smith had a horrible time getting her hair fixed for prom. "I first went to Cosmetique and came out with a terrible hairdo. Then I went to The Clip Joint. My hair didn't look any better. I finally ended up going home and fixing it myself. I was late for my own prom."

Randy Dollarhides' hair horror was when he realized he was getting old. "I woke up, looked in a mirror and my hair was turning gray."

Tina Nalley had one of the worst experiences. "I went on a trip to Washington D.C. and while I was on a bus my hair got caught in the fan. They had to turn it off to get it out of it."

Micky Walker had a more

5 hours
and $58
later

interesting hair problem. "I was driving down the road and a big hare jumped out in front of me. I had to take the ditch to miss it."

Tonya Rozell received a terrible hair cut when she was a young. "Back in my childhood days my brother wanted to play beauty shop! He insisted on being the barber first, and after he cut all my beautiful naturally curly locks off, I never got my turn to be the barber!!

Josh Gilbert got conned into a bad perm. "My cousin Jason talked me into getting a perm. It looked so stupid! I stayed up all night combing it out."

Mr. Long swears he wasn't told the whole truth when he joined the Army. "My recruiter told me that as long as I kept my hair up in a hat, I didn't have to get it all cut off." You can imagine his surprise when he told the barber to just trim the ends, and the first thing the barber did was shave a strip out of the top. "I just told him to go ahead and even up the sides."

Laura Nelson got a little hot above the collar. "I went to a beauty shop and got a perm. The beautician burnt my hair so bad that parts of my hair fell out."

Bradley Walker decided to play barber with his own hair. With a pair of electric clippers he shaved the sides of his hair off. "I just wanted my hair to be in style."

As you can see, trying to look good doesn't always work out the way you plan, but sometimes it does make for an interesting story. So, if you ever have a little trouble getting your hair to curl just right, or lay flat in one place and stand up in another. Just think, it could be worse. It could be a real HAIR HORROR!!

Red and Radiant

by Tina Nalley

Redheads, although only making up approximately 5 percent of the population, have spent a history alarming the world.

The world, at times in the past have thought redheads were up to witchcraft and sorcery and were thought to be either violent or false and usually both.

In the history of redheads, there have been a few high points that popularized their style, but between those times they may have been offered as human sacrifice, been stoned, abused, burned at the stake or simply shunned as outcasts.

Possibly the only reason there are still redheads today is because they are thought to bring good fortune along the way. Superstition has it that redheads are "good luck" carriers at game tables. Avaline Harris says she's very successful at playing monopoly, board games, and carnival games. There is also a superstition that evolved from England that says if you walk between two red headed girls that you'll soon be rich. South Pacific cultures believe they bring power and riches as well.

What are redheads heads personalities really like? Are they stubborn, hot tempered, mischievous, and vivacious? Perhaps. It seems unlikely, but redheads do tend to have distinct personality traits that are more consistent than do blondes and brunettes. The reason? It is believed that when they are singled out as they are, they're forced to think of their own individuality. Redheads say they have to fight to show that they are somebody so they tend to be more passionate and more set in their ideals and convictions. The Chadwick redheads polled all said they felt more hot tempered, mischievous, and vivacious than others.

Most high school students agree that their red headed schoolmates seem to have bubbly, more outgoing personalities. They are usually considered the "class clowns". Candy Plaster says she's always hyper (and her friends would probably agree!)

Growing up as a red head can be both good and bad--seems to depend upon the individual. Some may love to stand out in the crowd and have hair that people sometimes view as an accessory. On the other hand, being singled out can make a person feel self-conscious and insecure and eventually lower ones self esteem. Jessi Adams tells us that her grandmother teases her about being left out in the rain and now she's rusted. In this case though I think it's awfully cute rust!

Eric Siepker says when he got tired of being teased he fought the kids and won, so he doesn't get teased anymore.

So is life for redheads really that different for the rest of us? I asked a few Chadwick students if they felt they stood out in the crowd. Dustin Smith says he wears more red so he'll show up even more!

Mrs. Siepker tells us that she really doesn't think she stands out in the crowd except when she wears her blue and white polka dot dress!

Just the color, red, has always been associated with mystical, powerful, and evil things: magic, fire, heat, blood, etc. However, even though red hair is a somewhat improbable hair color, it stills holds a fascination for the world.

Whether a natural redhead or not, in the 90's they are earning respect--and money--from the image they project. So is the old saying that blondes have more fun still relevant? Well, most redheads say its time to move over and share the glory and as it seems redheads do have a way with people and the individuality to make it happen!

Chadwick Olympics

by Lisa Phillips

In the 1992 Olympics, American women finished higher than any of the American men in every sport except cross country and biathlon which they tied. The famous women were: Bonnie Blair, speed skating, two gold medals. Cathy Turner, short-track speed skating, gold medal, silver medal. Kristi Yamaguchi, figure skating, gold medal. Donna Weinbrecht, moguls, gold. Diann Roffe, Giant Slalom, silver. Hilary Lindh, downhill, silver. Nancy Kerrigan, figure skating, bronze.

The men were: Paul Wylie, figure skating, silver. Nelson Carmichael, Mogul Skier, bronze.

Some of the students at CHS were asked to create their own olympic event that they might compete in.

Chad Sue said he would go sniper hunting, Andi Wilson said she would make an event where you would walk on your hands underwater. Daniel Dotson said he would invent playing basketball with your feet. Chris Anderson would have people get in trees and act like Tarzan and see who could do it best. Misty Fintel would see who could wear the most green.

For those people who could not think of a successful event in which they could compete here are some ideas.

Ms. Henderson and the chemistry class- Can Smashing Competition. Tina Nalley- Scholarship Applying Competition. Randy Dollarhide and Jason Gilbert- Clumsiest Contest. Misty Fintel and Sara Whitley would rank last in The Yearbook Layout Contest. Melissa Loomis would compete in the Crash Derby contest. Julie Coffey would compete in the Womens Wrestling Match.

The Olympics will return in four years so those who wish to compete need to start practicing now.

Spring Break April, 17-26

by Patti Simmerman

The perfect spring break would be spent on the beach in Cancun Mexico, basking in the sun with a companion of your choice for two weeks in April.

Some CHS students share their ideas about their perfect spring break plans.

Micky Walker plans to run around as fast as he can and try to find a woman for himself.

Lisa Phillips looks forward to kicking back and relaxing. If its warm she plans to stay outside all day and soak up the rays.

Tina Nalley wants to sleep, shop, and work.

Misty Fintel plans to sleep in everyday and then get up and watch soaps all day.

Sucker grabbing and spending time with Brandy is what Randy Dollarhide plans to do.

Julie Coffey wants to continue doing just as little as she can get by with.

The most unusual plans for spring break are from Kathy Applegate and Amy Whitley. They plan to hitchhike to South America, swim across the Panama Canal, be responsible for single handedly bringing down the cocaine cartel in Columbia, and save the rainforest in Brazil. They will then continue to swim down to Antarctica to patch up the hole in the ozone layer. To round up their trip, they will pick up their Nobel Peace Prize and return to the U.S. as national heroes.

No matter what your plans are, we hope that you have a fun and safe break!

Selecting the Perfect Prom Dress

by Sara Whitley

Prom is a very special night for most students at Chadwick. A very important part of prom is having the perfect dress.

What do most girls look for in selecting the perfect prom dress?

When Stefanie Weter goes dress hunting, she definitely looks for style in a dress. This year Misty Fintel knew she was the only one who could make her prom dress perfect. She made her own green prom dress in Home Ec. Class. Kim Blevins looks for a simple, not so frilly, dress. She also prefers black. Laura Nelson shops until she finds a dress that has perfect style, fit, and color.

The price for a prom dress ranges from $50-$250.

The styles have changed over the years. Some of the Chadwick teachers were asked to describe their prom dresses. Mrs. Smith wore a mint green dotted swiss dress with a shawl to her prom. Mrs. Horton had a blue dress with white overlay and spaghetti straps. Mrs. Walton's mom made her a yellow dress with matching shoes.

Remember this year when you are shopping for your prom dress to pick the perfect dress for you.
